

NEW MEMBER FOCUS: CORNWALL PROPERTY FINDERS September 2012

In 2005, Cornwall Property Finders took on a small number of clients by specialising in locating and assessing properties for their qualities as homes, letting units or as investments for further development. The growing reputation of Cornwall Property Finders encouraged the business to re-launch as a refined and complete property consulting agency under the apt slogan: Properties For One & All.

Company owner Victoria Boughton said: "We are a small, friendly company dedicated to help fulfill aspirations by paying utmost attention to details, presenting you with accurate in-depth information on all local issues, as well as providing you with a personal agent and friend on the spot."

Victoria's scope of wisdom, attention to detail and passion extends beyond just the technical information of house types and sizes, and encompasses knowledge of where the sun rises and sets, why one side of a valley would make a more pleasant environment than the other, the ability to look at a place in the summer and imagine it in the winter, or to look at it in the winter and predict what impact, if any, the influence summer visitors may have and the instinct to know that one end of a terrace is more desirable than the other. Such knowledge can only come from living and breathing the Cornish air all one's life!

Today, Victoria enjoys the independence that having her own company brings. She prides herself in enjoying all aspects of the property market and delivers a first class service; a service where giving priority to the client and listening to their wants and needs is paramount. "I thrive on the opportunity to demonstrate that there are reputable property agents that genuinely value their clients. Your first home is one of the biggest assets you are ever likely to own, so it is paramount that you are able to trust the agent that is helping you to acquire it. As a woman and a mother, I can relate to the concerns and wishes of families seeking a new home. Local information such as schools, community facilities, leisure activities and employment are all second nature to me."

"As a property professional with many years of experience, my expertise and practical ability have been thoroughly tried, tested and proven. For busy people balancing their current commitments along with the need to sell or find a new home, I can ensure you that Cornwall Property Finders will cater for your every property need." www.cornwall-propertyfinders.co.uk
